671 Davis N.W. The fine home which stood on this site for many years was for many years the residence of Stanley and Josephine Miskewitz, who owned and operated the grocery store on the northeast corner of Fifth & Davis. They sold it to St. Adalbert's parish and moved to 829 Douglas N.W. After serving for some years as the convent for the School Sisters of Notre Dame who taught at West Catholic High School, housed in St. Adalbert's School across the street, the house was removed about 1957 for the construction of the new St.

1440 Davis N.W. Harrison Park School. Elementary and middle school built in 1925, renovated in 2007. Mr. Pheney was the architect of this building. He lived on Prospect N.E., and was the father of Patricia Shangraw, the widow of former firefighter Robert Shangraw. The school's castle-like towers were features that neighborhood residents cited as landmarks, keeping the original portion of the building intact when it was scheduled for remodeling and expansion in 2006. Middle School capacity: 546. 2009-10 enrollment: 306.
